

RELEASE AND INDEMNITY

Congratulations! By installing a Foodscape you are on the path to self sufficient food production or, at minimum, some delicious produce. Before choosing to install a foodscape, please consider the work involved in maintaining your foodscape and whether or not you reside in an area free from laws, covenants, conditions, and/or restrictions against altering your space by adding a garden. If you have any questions regarding the applicability of local laws to your foodscape, we recommend you consult with a lawyer, your Homeowner's Association, or your local neighborhood planning council prior to installation to determine if your community allows the installation. For bigger or complex gardening projects, we highly recommend you to consult with a landscape architect to determine if the project is appropriate for your space.

Foodscaping Utah is not responsible for any costs or damages associated with the installation, whether those costs result directly from the installation of the foodscape itself or from any resulting changes made necessary by the installation of the foodscape. Similarly, we are not responsible for ongoing consultation and/or labor for the maintenance of the foodscape.

By requesting that Foodscaping Utah assist with your foodscape installation, you are agreeing to indemnify and hold Foodscaping Utah harmless from any damages resulting from the foodscape, including but not limited to personal injuries or property damages.

In addition, your signature below is acknowledgement that participation in the foodscaping may involve the risk of injury, and that you assume all risks of participation in this activity. Further, your signature below constitutes your agreement to release and hold harmless Foodscaping Utah and any individual, officer, employee, agent or representative of Foodscaping Utah, against any and all claims, actions, demands, liabilities, and damages with respect to any illness or injury, or any loss or damage to property of any type, relating to or arising out of participation in the foodscaping activity.
